HOUMA LAND LITIGATION.
Another Step in the Troubles Over Some Old Indian Lands in Louisiana.

After a quiet of several years the old Ho- uma Indians, who had in the front to occupy the attention of the United States courts. Probably it is said that they are more trouble than those of the Ho- uma Indians. But the public has not been slow to recognize that an occupied a considerable part of south Louisiana when the French landed there. It is said that the French occupied the present site of New Orleans. The Indians were quiet and peaceful; they lived by the hunting and fishing. It is said that the French had a great deal of trouble with themselves. The French were the only white people in the area.

The town of the tribe became totally extinct and the lands were taken over by the government. It is said that the Ho- uma Indians were taken over by the French. The land was taken over by the Spanish and they claimed it. The Spanish claimed the land in southern Louisiana. An attempt was made to oust the squatters from the land. The squatters were told that they could not stay on the land. The squatters were told that they had to sell their land. The squatters were told that they had to leave their land. The squatters were told that they had to leave their land.

There was the same trouble in Ascension Parish. The land was taken over by the government in 1825, and again in 1829. Quite a number of the squatters who had entered the land attempted to take possession of it. They were met by the military, and they were forced to leave the land occupied by whites and blacks. The military declared that they were being pressured by the United States government. They declared that they were being pressured by the United States government. They were being pressured to leave.

After much bargaining a compromise was reached. The squatters agreed to pay a certain sum of money, either to the United States government or to the state of Louisiana. It was decided that they were to pay the sum of money.

But again in 1857 the United States government attempted to take possession of the land. There were three times when entries were made. The entries were made by the state of Louisiana. The state of Louisiana declared that the entries were fraudulent and not in good faith. The state of Louisiana declared that the entries were fraudulent and not in good faith. The state of Louisiana declared that the entries were fraudulent and not in good faith. The state of Louisiana declared that the entries were fraudulent and not in good faith.

The squatters and other occupants of the public lands in dispute, who contested the entries, were found to be in the eastern half of Ascension Parish. It is believed that by this expenditure the courts will be able to resolve the dispute.

The squatters and other occupants of the public lands in dispute, who contested the entries, were found to be in the eastern half of Ascension Parish. It is believed that by this expenditure the courts will be able to resolve the dispute.

The squatters and other occupants of the public lands in dispute, who contested the entries, were found to be in the eastern half of Ascension Parish. It is believed that by this expenditure the courts will be able to resolve the dispute.