

THE LOUISIANA QUESTION.

We see by a special to the St. Louis Globe that some of the leading McEnery men have acknowledged the frauds by which the Warmoth returning board declared McEnery elected. This proves that Judge Durell was right, at least in his judgment, when he pronounced Kellogg elected and entitled to the place of governor of Louisiana, and that President Grant had only installed the man as governor whom a majority of the people had chosen. The Gazette indulged in columns of abuse of Grant for his action in this matter and upheld the action of its Warmoth confederates. Now that they have acknowledged the evidence and admitted that Kellogg was elected, will it retract its abuse of Grant? We will see.
