

Bonnie Marker Found in Gully

The 75-pound bronze marker missing from the grave of Bonnie Parker was found by police Thursday night in a small gully near Exchange Park.

Officers went to the gully at Stutz and Forest Park after an anonymous telephone caller told The Dallas News it had been dumped there.

The headstone turned up missing from Crown Hill Memorial Park Thursday morning, on the exact date of her death 34 years ago in an ambush by law enforcement officers in Louisiana. Clyde Barrow, who also was killed in the ambush, is buried in another Dallas cemetery.
