

AID TO SOLDIERS DAVIS' PRIME AIM

Candidate Favors Education Plan for Servicemen

(Special to The Times-Picayune)
De Quincy, Nov. 15.—Gubernatorial Candidate James H. "Jimmie" Davis told a De Quincy audience here this afternoon that plans for the rehabilitation of service men would be one of his first major undertakings if he is elected governor. He stated that he favored "broadened educational opportunities" for the men and women in the services.

"Service men who have left their school and work to fight for democracy must be given the privilege of catching up when they return to civilian life," Davis said. Declaring that those serving their country should be given every opportunity to continue their schooling, Davis said: "Thousands of young men who have been forced to leave their studies and apprenticeships in business must be provided the opportunity to continue their schooling or to be trained for a work of their own choosing that they may take their rightful place in our society. College programs and trade schools must be provided for them and every assistance for their rehabilitation should be given," he stated.

The candidate reiterated his previous pronouncements that he is running strictly on his own, and that he favored all constructive legislation of all past administrations, "no matter who the governor was at the time the legislation was enacted." Earlier in the day, Davis and his radio and recording band appeared before audiences at Jennings, Welsh and Sulphur and were scheduled for a night rally Monday night at Lake Charles. Fred S. LeBlanc, mayor of Baton Rouge, candidate for attorney general, and Zachary T. Gallion, candidate for state auditor, spoke at all meetings today in behalf of their candidates. At the De Quincy meeting, Mayor LeBlanc stated that while progress has been made in restoring peace and harmony in Louisiana, the election of Jimmie Davis as governor would be a big step forward in that direction.

On Tuesday Davis and his party will continue their tour of the Seventh Congressional District with talks scheduled at Kinderhook, m., Oberlin, 11:30 a. m.; Oakdale, 2 p. m., and De Ridder, 7:30 p. m.

BRITISH HEALTH MEASURES TOLD

Medical Official Addresses Social Agencies Group

England has learned from its experiences during the war that children are the heritage of a country and the future of a nation lies in the mothers and children, Dr. Dorothy M. Taylor, senior medical officer of the British Ministry of Health, told the delegate body of the Council of Social Agencies Monday at the Young Women's Christian Association.

Although the necessity of mobilizing English industry for the war rapidly produced material loss at Dunkirk forced the Ministry of Health to sacrifice immediate health policies for women in 1940, the long-term plan begun then has resulted in improved health among both mothers and children, Dr. Taylor said.

The two and a half-million married English women now in essential war work are well cared for by a system of public health and factory clinics, she said.

The care of the children of women in industry has been solved to a large extent by a system of day nurseries, 24-hour nurseries, nursery schools and registered day guardians. The infant mortality rate is the lowest in the history of England and nutrition of mothers and children is better than prior to the war, Dr. Taylor said.

Approximately 98 per cent of the children born in England are visited at regular intervals by public health nurses and all children receive a pint of milk a day in addition to vitamin preparations. Adult rations of eggs have been reduced to one per month in order to provide three per week for small children and expectant mothers, according to Dr. Taylor.

Dr. Taylor is visiting this country at the invitation of the American Public Health Association and is making a survey of child care clinics and nurseries throughout the nation.

ELLENDER FAVORS SUBSIDY POLICY

Senate Predicts Victory for Administration

BY PAUL WOODSON
(The Times-Picayune Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Nov. 15.—Certain defeat faces the opponents of the administration's subsidy policy. This is the opinion of Senator Allen J. Ellender who as a member of the committee on agriculture has followed the controversy closely. When pressed at the hearings conducted by his committee, Senator Ellender said that the opponents of subsidies admitted that they want all controls removed.

"It does not require an economist," Senator Ellender stated, "to realize what would happen if the laws of supply and demand were allowed to operate without control. This is not a matter of protection for the farmers or protection for the consumer. It is a question of control of the whole economic structure. A stabilized economy is just as essential to the efficient waging of war as is a stable service of supply for the front line."

Senator Ellender expects to address the Senate on this subject in the course of the debate. As a rule, he says, he would be against subsidies but anyone who will examine the records will satisfy himself that subsidies have been the chief instrument used by the price administrator in preventing runaway situations in the essentials of life.

While he admits that mistakes have been made by the office of price administration, Senator Ellender feels that by and large they have done an effective job. He says the figures prove it. During World War I the cost of living increased 50.3 per cent. This far during this war the increase has been held under 25 per cent.

Despite the ceilings that have held down prices on agricultural commodities, farmers' prices have risen more during this war than during World War I, when the restraints on price increases were less. Farm prices, Senator Ellender says, have risen 28 per cent more during this war than they did during the last war. Not only that, the prices which the farmer has had to pay for goods he buys have advanced 37 per cent less than they did during the World War.

The farmer, he declared, is immeasurably better off at this time than he was at the end of the World War. The average yearly income of the farmer during the 1935-39 period was $4,668,000,000. In 1943 farmers will receive more than $12,000,000,000 in income. He hopes that no misguided farm leaders will kill the goose that has been laying golden eggs.

The price structure in agricultural commodities, Senator Ellender will point out, to the Senate, frequently is complicated, but the effective way in which subsidies operate can be illustrated simply by showing what has happened to copper.

By the judicious use of a small subsidy the advance of the price of copper during this war has been held to 14 per cent. During World War I the price of copper went up 90.3 per cent.

During the last war the price of steel plate increased 187.4 per cent. There has been no advance in the price of steel plate since Pearl Harbor. The price of cotton has increased 132 per cent during World War I. During this war the increase has been held down to 71.9 per cent. Blue denim went up 214.8 per cent in price during the first World War. Thus far during this war the price increase has been 74.5 per cent.

If there had been no price control during this war, Senator Ellender states, the cost of the government's armament program would have been $68,000,000,000 more than it has been. If there had been no price control consumers would have had to pay $22,000,000,000 more for the goods they have used thus far during this war.

If prices are allowed to run away, the farmer suffers more than any other group, Senator Ellender states. He is in a position to protect himself against sudden declines in price. As a result his prices fall faster and farther than do prices of other commodities. In World War I the slump in farm prices was 41 per cent while the decline was only 18 per cent in what the farmer had to buy.

Senator Ellender has called upon several of the government statistical agencies to furnish him with the figures that will show the relative position of the farmer today and during World War I when price controls were not so effective. He is convinced that the subsidy method is the only way that the cost of living can be kept at relatively stable levels. If the cost of living is allowed to increase to a material extent it will result in a wave of demands for wage increases, and an inflationary spiral started.

STATE P.-T. A. MEETING SLATED, SAYS HEAD
(Special to The Times-Picayune)
Shreveport, Nov. 15.—There will be a state convention of the Parent-Teacher Association but the place of the meeting has not been decided upon. Mrs. Roger P. Sharp, New Orleans state president, said in an address to the Fourth District convention of the organization here today.

She reported, also, that a national convention would be held in New York City this year. The national convention has been dispensed with and a national board meeting held instead.

Mrs. Sharp urged that the parent-teachers take an active part in the program to reduce juvenile delinquency. Mrs. J. B. Best of Shreveport presided at the convention.

Chile plans a private council to exploit the large scale deposits belonging to the government.
